

Deb Gode – M.S.

Deb, the “backbone” of Court Street Veterinary hospital, has been an integral part of the team for 13 years. Deb is a Veterinary Technician who provides skills and caring for your pets that are unequalled in the profession. She is co-author of the book “Wild Baby Animals”, and also is the chief operator and director of Winchester Wildlife Rehab center. Deb has held an interest in helping animals her whole life, beginning when she found an opossum in a garbage can who was starving, since then Deb is never without animals in her life. She works tirelessly at the hospital caring for pets undergoing anesthesia, medical treatment and then returns home to care for many injured and orphaned wildlife animals. Her biggest supporter and husband Ron has been a part of her life for 25 years and is always by her side giving her the encouragement she needs to continue on. Deb enjoys traveling, kayaking and skiing, although we don't know how she finds the time! Deb is an inspiration to us all as well as an invaluable team member!
